Daily Thought.

To cultivate kindness is a great part of the business of life.—Samuel

A certain large engineering firm lately received an order in Russian. and, although the receiver of it had a fair knowledge of the language, there were two words he was unable to translate. Somewhere in the works, however, a real Russian was employed. They brought him along, and he read the letter carefully, but was still puzzled by these two words. Literally, he explained their meaning "hot stockings," which seemed absurd, but was presently seen to be the nearest-known Russian synonym for "fire hose."-Manchester Guardian.

Inculcating Right Views. Some people hold that children should hear sad things to cultivate their sympathy. Might it not be just as effective to teach them to sympa-thize with gladness? Is it not much easier to weep with those that weep than it is to really rejoice with those who do rejoice? It is a very hardened heart that is not softened at the sight of pain and distress, while it requires something higher and nobler to be glad when another has some pleasure or happiness greater than we possess.

Wholesale Bathing.

At Kumbakonam, the Indian Oxford, the biggest religious festival in Hindostan takes place every 12 years. On the last occasion 460,000 people bathed in the tank, or pond, attached to the principal temple. As among the pilgrims there were those who had washed but seldom since the previous occasion, what the water looked like at the finish, says the Rallway Magazine, may be imagined.

How many friends were there just like the first? How many dollars had this colored man lost through neglect to notify the public which includes his friends.

The business man did not even resort to the somewhat out-ofdate method of scattering circulars. He had never considered advertising. He, too, knew that white merchants who have built their business from small beginning to large propositions had been large users of advertising space in the newspapers. He did not seem tocare to know that the public largely patronized these merchants because they let the community know what they had for sale. There is a reason why the larger per cent of Cabinet Stationary used by Kansas City's "400" is turned from the Arthur W. Harris Printing Establishment. First their workmanship in this class of service is unexcelled by any of the larger and best equipped printing establishments in this city, since they all but make a specialty of this class of work. Second, while their prices are not always the lowest, they are always five fairest. They have "delivered" with accuracy and despatch to over 90 per cent of the classy weddings and receptions during the past year and now when a function of class is announced its a ten-to-one shot that Harris will handle the job.
